

4th – 8th June 2018 ‘HAVE, U Can’ Programme

18th February 2019

To Whom It May Concern

Lingnan University (Hong Kong) has been collaborating with Dr. Cecilia Chan on the project Driving Cultural and Educational Shift: Providing Support, Activities and Professional Development in the Pedagogy, Assessment and Evidence of Student Learning in Holistic Competencies. Lingnan University has collected significant data to understand our students' perceptions on generic competencies based on the frameworks and evaluation instruments developed by Dr. Chan. This led to evaluation and assessment of the integration of generic skills and competencies within our university.

Furthermore, results from the project allowed benchmarking against other universities. While making comparisons with partner universities in Hong Kong, the output of this project enabled us to benchmark against universities from overseas, as Dr. Chan's instruments have been adopted by higher education institutions outside of Hong Kong. Comparisons with foreign institutions would mark where our university is stationed regarding generic skills and competencies.

In addition to the instruments, the Have, U Can programme based on this project has helped our students become more aware of their competencies' strengths and weaknesses. Since Lingnan University's mission has already included a commitment to cultivating holistic competencies, we will seek areas for further collaboration upon receipt of the results of data analysis from the University of Hong Kong.

Sincerely,

Leonard K. Cheng
